WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, - - EDITOR.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1896.

It is very unfortunate that the important business, requiring the Bennington to be at sea on the day of the opening of the Legislature, could not have been postponed for twenty-four hours. There are numerous ways in which officers of the navy can show their marked friendship for the people of the country where they are stationed. Possibly this is one of them. It would be interesting for the people to know who is responsible for this little act of courtesy.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

In his message to the Senators and Representatives assembled in the first regular session of the Legislature of the Republic, President Dole has followed the line of brevity and sincerity which characterized his message at the special session. The message is thoroughly characteristic of the calm, unostentatious and careful administration of the President. He makes no attempt to inspire admiration with high sounding phrases or the recommendation of any radical measures to stir the political pot and set the country broiling. There are those, doubtless, who would be pleased with more effusive and radical treatment of several subjects, but President Dole is not and never has been a jingo and to that fact may be attributed to a certain degree the success of his administration.

Principal attention is given to internal affairs, and our foreign relations in connection with complications arising from complaints filed by citizens of other countries are left to take care of themselves, so far as any public utterance of the President is concerned. It is apparent that Mr. Dole believes in allowing the acts of those having these international affairs in hand to speak for themselves. It goes without saying that the national dignity will be upheld at all hazards, and that the country is in no danger of being placed at a disadvantage by the claims which may be brought by foreign powers. It is also to be taken for granted that our relations with the United States continue on the usual friendly basis, although we must admit that, after reading the inside history that has recently been put before them by the press, the people would not be surprised if the conditions were otherwise.

In the recommendations for public improvements even the people of Hilo ought to be satisfied. The "big island" is given a prominence that even its most ardent solicitors for public funds ought to be grateful for. The President evidently desires—and very properly so—to impress upon the people that they must give their principal effort to the development of our internal resources and determine with extreme care the ways and means for carrying on this work to the best advantage. In advocating an increase of tariff duties, a keynote has been touched that will meet with favor among our best commercial friends, the citizens of the United States. With this country drawing thousands of dollars, which would be lost but for the reciprocity treaty, it can be nothing more than a fair return to place our tariff duties nearer the level of those in the United States. Laying aside the increased revenue may accrue from an increased tariff, the people of this country must, sooner or later, come to understand that they cannot have their cake and eat it. And every move made to increase the already large percentage of imports coming from the United States is a line laid to bind us more closely to the nation at whose doors we are clamoring for political admission. In connection with the efforts to settle small producers on the Government lands, it is somewhat surprising that no mention is made of the Labor Commission. Taken as a whole it may be said that the President's message antagonizes no party, faction or nation, and leaves the solution of the best methods of procedure in the hands of the representatives of the people.

CLARA BARTON of the American Red Cross Society once said to a friend who came to her for advice, "Go slowly, my child—and keep ready." This would not be a bad motto for the Legislature to follow. It seems quite possible that the present session may continue through the full sixty days, and during that time will be called upon to settle some very knotty problems. There are many sides to be heard from, but the people are looking for careful legislation as well as prompt legislation. There should be no place given to idle threats, in forming conclusions.

In a fit of economy Senator Brown has allowed himself to be convinced that a typewriter and mimeograph will be all that is necessary in preparing the first drafts of bills brought before the Legislature. To do away with the old method of engrossing bills is undoubtedly a good move, and will save the delay and expense which attended the engrossment of bills during the special session. To replace the printer by the mimeograph is quite another proposition. By the time the legislative solons have had an experience with two or three mimeographed bills they will be thankful that the printing offices are still doing business at the old stands.

THAT the rebuilding of the opera house is an assured fact will be received with general satisfaction throughout the country. The plans and descriptions given in another column give assurance that the hall will rise from the ashes in an improved and modernized form. The public have often had reason to be grateful to W. G. Irwin as a public benefactor and this is by no means the least of his good works.

Weak And Nervous

Describes the condition of thousands of people at this season. They have no appetite, cannot sleep, and complain of the prostrating effect of warmer weather. This condition may be remedied by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates an appetite and tones up all the organs. It gives good health by making the blood pure.

W. W. DIMOND.

If our stock had been smaller, we could have had everything ready for an exhibition on the 17th. But it is not; it is larger than we dreamed of and the result is that the shelves are not all full, the floor is not tidied up as it should be and the goods are not all displayed so as to catch your eye. Four days longer and everything would have been as a row of new pins.

The departments are here, and even on Monday, you will have a fair idea of what the place will be like. But there is one thing we will convince you of, even with the unsettled state of affairs—the departments are departments, every one of them; the crockery is on the left and the glassware on the right, not mixed together as you occasionally find such things. Hardware is at the rear on the left and cutlery and platedware in cases at the center of the store, not scattered about.

You know what this means, facility in buying, economy of time to you, and us. Cash carriers and accommodating clerks prevent delays so that if you are waiting for a car and know what you want, three minutes will fix the business for you.

The stock, remember, is complete as a whole and in detail. On the upper floor we have shelves and shelves of novelties in house furnishing goods, stoves, refrigerators and ice boxes. An array that would delight the eye of the most fashionable New York shopper; take elevator at rear of store and save steps—absolutely safe and easy riding.

We furnish you with conveniences and facilities for buying goods at retail at wholesale prices.

What do you think of that?
